

My Primary School

Six years ago, I was a Primary One student in Hennessy Road Government Primary School. I remember my first writing was "My School"! At that time, I was not familiar with my school. I only managed to draw some pictures and write some simple wrong sentences like "This is playground" and "This is classroom".

Now, I am a Primary Six student and I have managed to speak and write much better English. I remember there were a lot of wonderful experiences here in the past six years. I remember my first time on stage to perform a Putonghua poem for the school open day, my first time on stage to get a certificate to recognise I did well in English in Primary One and my first time on stage to act in the drama in Primary Four. In the past few years, I have managed to make a lot of friends. We play together during recess and we read together in the library. Also, I am glad that I got the chance to take part in the school teams and I got the chance to be on the librarian team.

I almost need to say goodbye to my primary school. I feel happy because I am going to start a new chapter, but I feel sad at the same time, as I am going to miss my friends and teachers.

The Candyland

Once upon a time, there was a secret land in space, floating above Earth, called Candyland. Everything, literally everything, on Candyland is made of candies. The floor is made of candies, the buildings are made of candies, even the sky is as colourful as candies. You'll never be starved on Candyland. When students are hungry in classes, they just lick the table. Everyone living on Candyland loves candies, so happiness filled the land.

One day, a little girl, Cherry, went to school at the Candy College. When she stepped in the classroom, she saw a shocking scene. All the candy tables and candy chairs, and even the candy-conditioners in the classroom had disappeared! A few days later, all the things in the school were gone. Everyone was scared. The teachers called the police, still in shock.

The police arrived with an investigator. They searched the entire school trying to find some clues, but there wasn't even one. They were so puzzled.

Suddenly, the enormous television screen outside Candy Plaza flashed on. A reporter appeared and said excitedly, "Breaking news! Our citizen, Mr. Brutal, is now the richest person in the world! The world record of the richest man is officially broken!" Everyone was so confused about the news.

"Why would Mr. Brutal suddenly break the world record, and how?"

That's really suspicious", said the investigator. "How can he gain millions, or even billions of dollars that quickly? That's really weird".

A few days later, the answer came. The enormous television screen outside Candy Plaza flashed on again. "Breaking news! Mr. Brutal was arrested by the Space Police! Let's do an interview with the captain of the Space Police". The reporter said, "Hello, Mr. Brian. Why was Mr. Brutal arrested?"

Mr. Brian, the captain of the Space Police, said, "Our team found that there were some illegal business transactions between the Earth and Candyland. Our team caught Mr. Brutal after a search. He stole lots of candies from Candyland and sold them on Earth. The delicious and unique candies on Candyland are so amazing that people on Earth love them. These candies were sold expensively on Earth. That's why Mr. Brutal could be so rich. All the money he gained from these illegal business transactions were all confiscated by Space Police. The Space Police want to appeal to everyone to please don't be greedy and cherish things you have".

The reporter made a conclusion. "Thanks Mr. Brian. Everyone, please remember, cherish things you have, never be greedy".
