

The Mysterious Man and the Camping "Me"

Mum made me attend a camp that I didn't want. On the day, everyone was ecstatic except me. The bus hit the road right away, but I sneaked out when it stopped for traffic.

I went home but no one was there. Weird things then happened, starting with someone knocking on the door. I was scared when I found this strange man by the door. I slammed it close immediately but he crashed in and took my favourite Lego minifigures then ran away. I chased him and fell through a wormhole!

With a whoosh of time, the wormhole led me to the camp. I had no way out but stayed on. It turned out to be quite fun yet I didn't give up on my "man search" mission. He was nowhere to be found except for a note, 'Things may not be as bad as they seem unless you try'. I wondered what it meant...

6H Ho Sze Wai, Stephanie

If I were a Teacher for One Day

It would be so much fun to be a teacher for one day! I can collect what my class thinks about teachers and try to improve on it.

I think I'll be an English and Music teacher since I like these subjects the most. I'll let my students have some fun while making sure that they are learning at the same time.

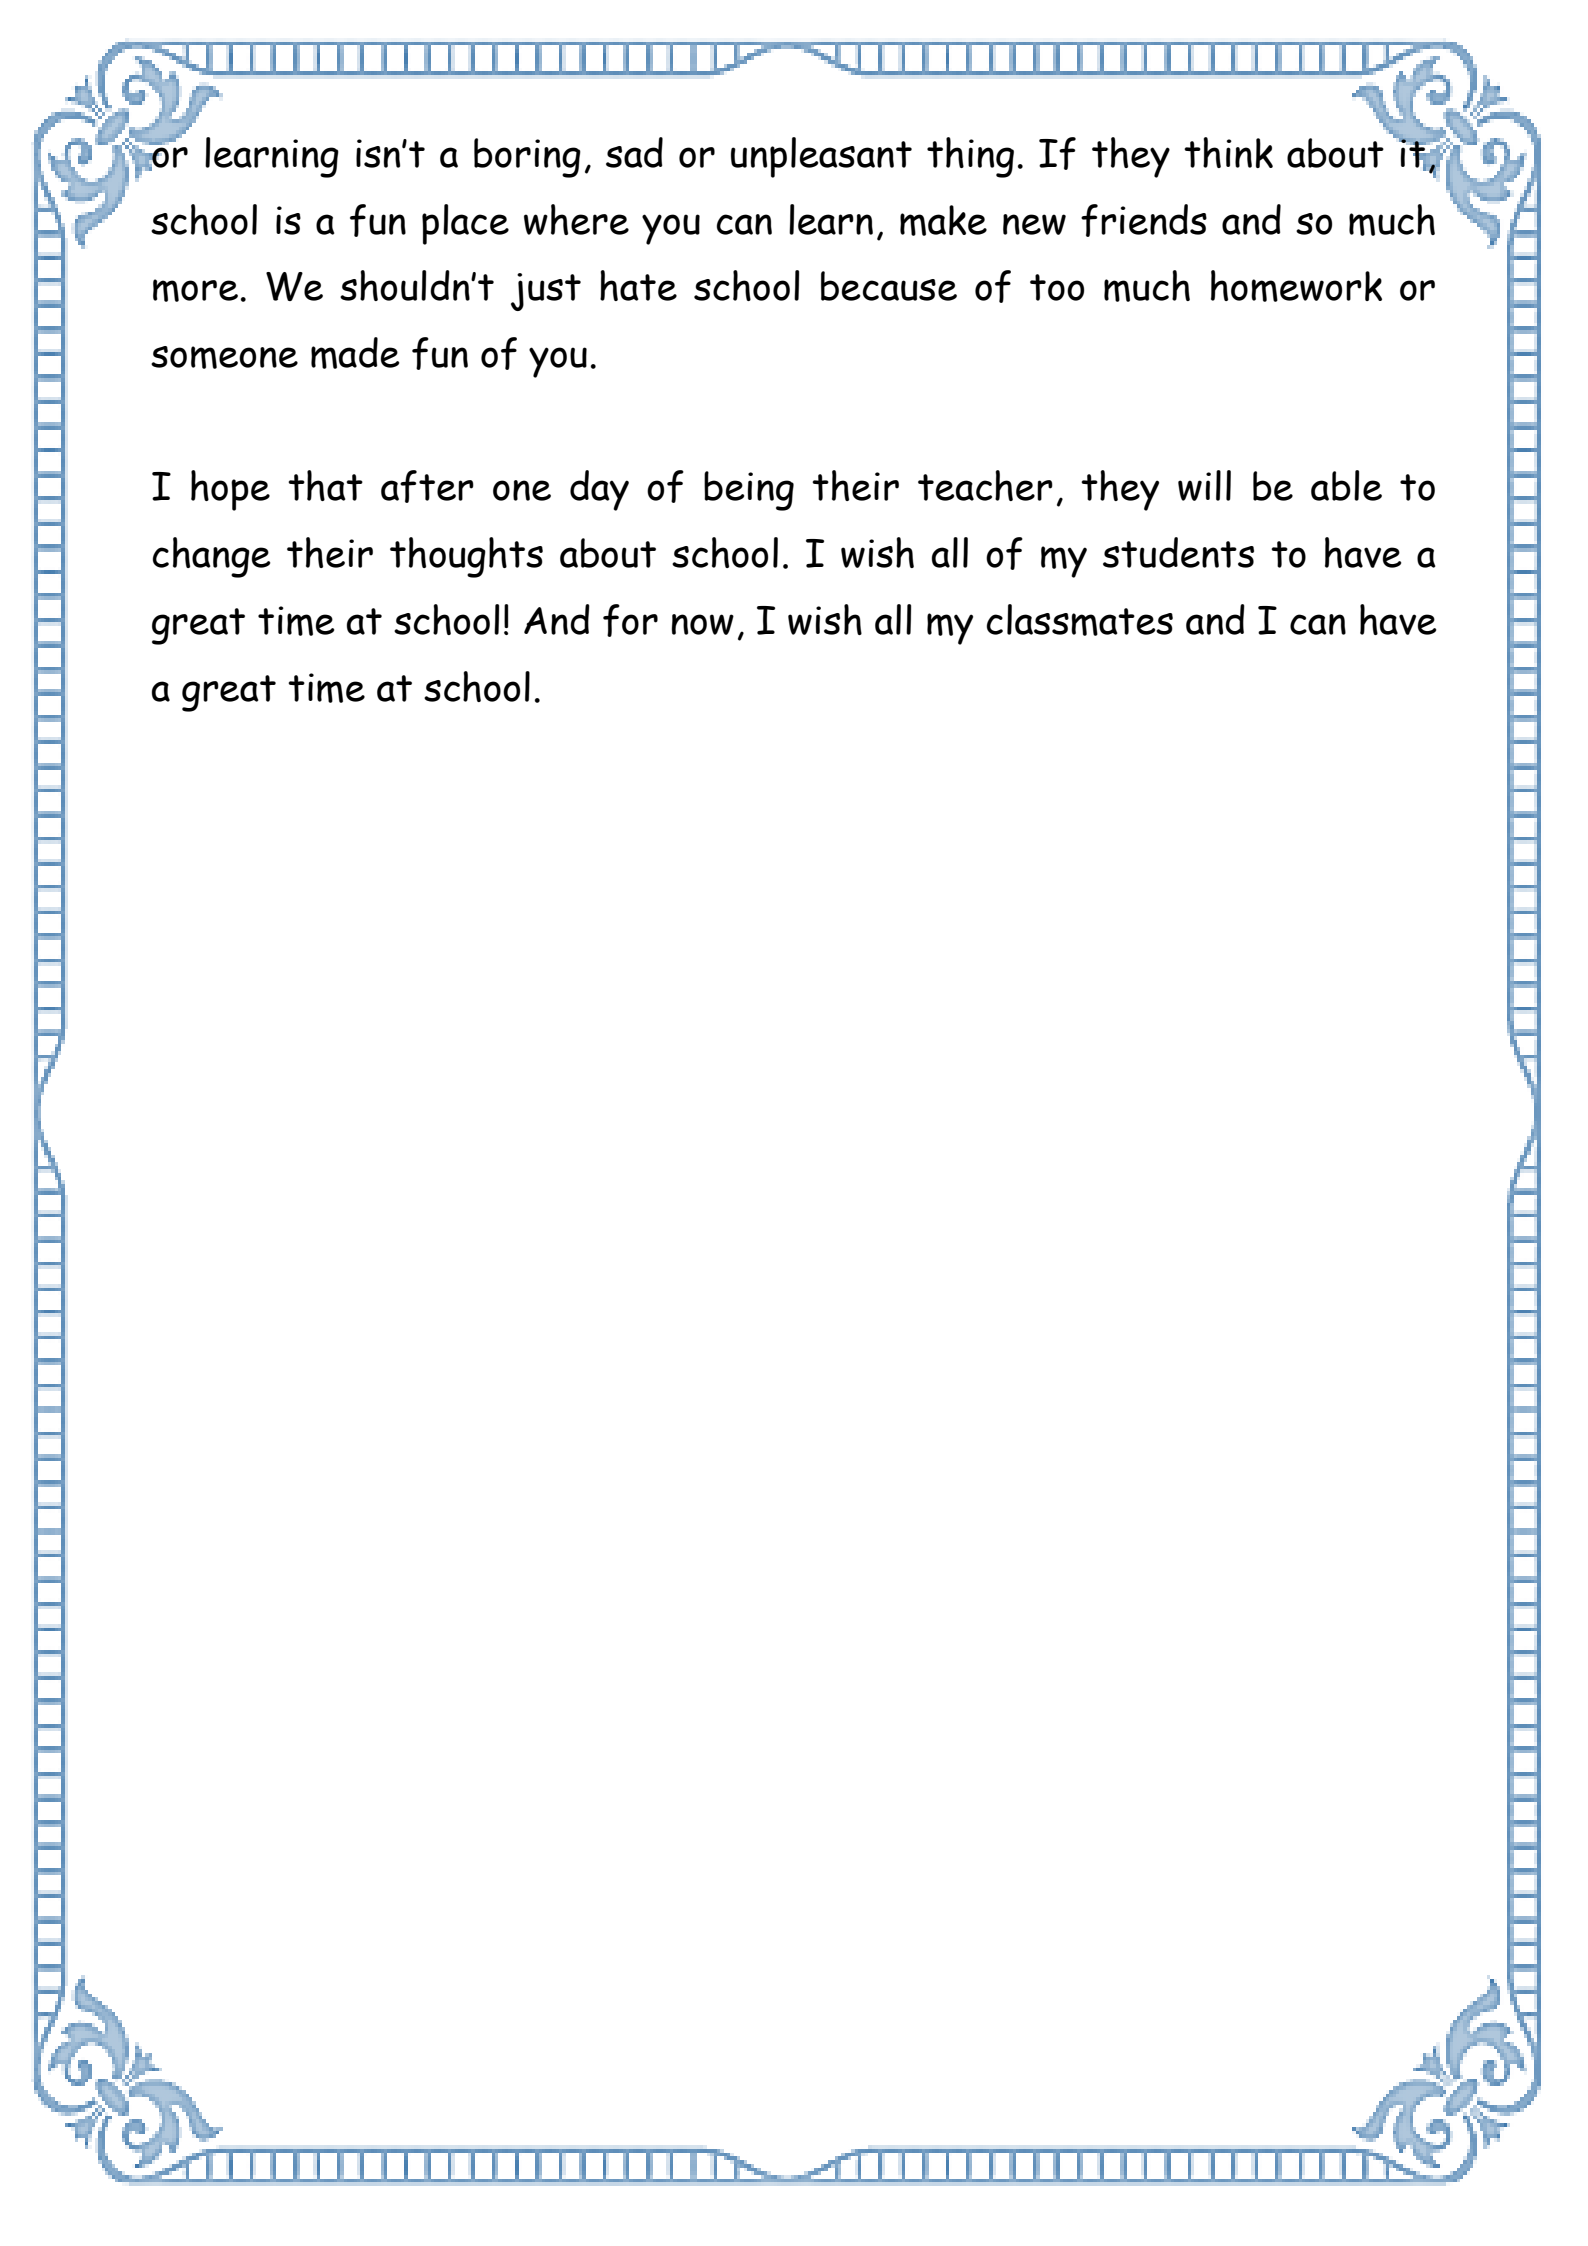

For English lessons, I'll let them watch some foreign TV programmes as they're not just entertaining, but educational at the same time. Students can learn new vocabulary and improve their oral skills at the same time.

During Music lessons, I'll let my students listen to different genres of music so that they can learn more.

I won't give too much homework because as a student myself, I know how hard it is to do loads of homework. However, I'll still give my students some since practice makes perfect.

If my students misbehave, I'll certainly discipline them because it is important to behave well and they might disturb their fellow students.

At the end of the day, I hope that my students have learnt something new. I also hope that they can understand that going to school or learning isn't a boring, sad or unpleasant thing. If they think about it, school is a fun place where you can learn, make new friends and so much more. We shouldn't just hate school because of too much homework or someone made fun of you.

I hope that after one day of being their teacher, they will be able to change their thoughts about school. I wish all of my students to have a great time at school! And for now, I wish all my classmates and I can have a great time at school.