

6S (11) Ho Siu Shing

An Awful Experience

That day I was so shocked and nervous that I remembered it for a long time.

One day, when I was in Primary Two, after having a drawing lesson, I went to a toilet nearby. I locked the toilet door. When I finished, I was shocked! I turned the lock but the door kept shut! I turned the lock crazily, only hoping that it would work, but it wouldn't. I slammed my shoulder against the door, using all my strength; at the same time I was calling for help. Then I pressed the 'Emergency' button. Time seemed to go so slow. Just as I was exhausted from shouting, I heard a man's voice. He comforted me and told me not to be afraid, also telling me how to turn the lock.

Suddenly, an unbelievable thing happened! The door clicked and the door opened. At last, the building's workman pressed off the 'Emergency' button. I was so relieved and thanked the man for comforting me. It was truly an awful experience. But I was happy that I learned the word 'Emergency' when I was only in Primary Two.

My Best Friend

My best friend is Issac Ho. We have been in the same class for two years. He wears a pair of blue glasses. He likes Kamen Rider very much. Last Thursday, he even bought a magazine about it and brought it back to school.

I think Issac is a helpful person. He often helps our teacher to deliver our homework. Once, our class teacher, Mr Chow, was busy teaching us Maths and he had forgotten to give our exercise books back. Therefore, Issac raised his hand and helped Mr Chow by giving us back our exercise books. Such a helpful boy!

Issac is also punctual and responsible. Since he is a prefect, he comes to school early to perform his duty. At the second recess, he is on duty on time too. Thus, a lot of teachers like him very much.

In addition, I think Issac is a confident person. When he talks to others, he is not shy. Once, our Chinese teacher Miss Fung invited Issac to give a speech. Issac spoke loudly and clearly. We clapped our hands when he finished speaking.

I am glad that Issac is my best friend. He is the most confident and helpful person I have ever known.